He wasn't himself when he came back, Johnson said. "I talked to him," the witness continued, "and he told me that he and Joe Viliaro and Paul Acers, had shot a man in a garage at Pittsburg."

Chinese Bird Lovers.

Birds play an important part in the domestic life of the Chinese. Besides using their flesh, eggs, and even their nests as food, they keep a great many as pets. Indeed, their fondness for birds is one of the most pleasant features of their national character. Birds furnish them with much amusement. Some, like the peacock and the parrot, they teach to sing for them. Several kinds of birds are taught to catch seeds thrown into the air after jumping from perches held in the hand. Except in winter one can always see people going into the open country early in the morning with their pets, to catch grasshoppers for them and to teach their pets new songs.

For Evening Gowns.

Broadened materials of all kinds are to make evening affairs gorgeous this winter. Satins and velvets are being shown today in richer brocades than ever before and in more daring combinations of colors. One piece of satin, for example, is in deep apricot brocaded with vivid green. But of all the new materials, broadened crepe is the loveliest and most pliable.

Constipation

Relieved Without the Use of Laxatives

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe. When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus replaces it. Try it today.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles. Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets the substitute for calomel. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain. Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c and 30c.

SAY "BAYER" when you buy Aspirin

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on the package or on the tablets you are not getting the genuine Bayer product prescribed by physicians over 22 years and proved safe by millions for cures of headache, toothache, neuralgia, rheumatism, neuritis and for pain in general. Accept only Bayer's cost-free tablets. Drugists also sell bottles of 24 and 100. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacturing Co., Monacaeteclester of Salicylic acid. Advertisement

Was a "Bear Cat"

"My wife was never an angel, but after five years of liver and stomach trouble she became a 'bear cat.' No doctor or medicine helped her and we thought there was no help for her. Our grocer told me of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, which had helped him for some trouble, so I brought home a bottle, but she promptly threw it out. I got it back and after a week coaxed her into taking it. She is now enjoying the best of health and disposition." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrh at mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. A. A. Clarke and druggists everywhere.—Advertisement.

FIERY, ITCHING ECZEMA HEALED RIGHT UP BY APPLYING SULPHUR

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Menthol-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment and disfigurement. Sufferers from skin trouble should get a little jar of Rowles' Menthol-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like a cold cream.—Advertisement.

EXAMPLE OF FOOL PARENTS

Onlookers Doubtless Would Have Said the "Twig" Might Have Been "Bent" to Advantage.

"They" boarded an outboard street car. "They"—father and mother, mistakenly, unfatherly adoring and old enough to be wiser, and sturdy, handsome, adorable (at times) two-year-old son, wise beyond his years and beyond his parents. Not quite so adorable at this particular time, for he was screaming, yelling, howling, screaming, kicking and doing everything else in his small but mighty power to make known his wants and attain his desire. His attention refused to be distracted. Older people might have envied him his power of concentration.

"What do you want, darling? Come on, let's have a little touch. Oh, look at the pretty lights. Tell mother what sweetheart wants!" repeated in tones of varying invitation and hopefulness—were all in vain. "Darling, sweetheart" refused to be diverted from his purpose or to vouchsafe a single word of reply.

After two blocks of this unintermitted performance the small family rose to leave the car, the mother explaining to an obviously curious holder: "We have to get off. He won't ride in a street car. He must have a taxi." Lost seen, adored and adoring were hailing up Sixth avenue to a taxi station, adored all smiles and sunshine in his father's arms.—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

PASS UP ALL KINDS OF WORK

Marquise Natives of the South Sea Islands Cannot Be Brought to Do Any Labor.

The natives of the Marshall Islands, 50 years ago, before the advent of the missionaries, were typical savages of the South seas. They lived a natural wild existence, unbridled by civilization, and eating only what nature provided for them—coconut and the pandanus fruit. They had no houses. They lived under thatched roofs, supported at the four corners by poles to make their faces blacker than they really are, and to bring out the designs of the tattoo marks more clearly. They have schools and hospitals which were started by these brave missionaries of half a century ago. Their chief is particularly modern. He lives in a house, and since Japan has taken possession he has a wireless station on his island, the island of Wotje. He even dictates to a stenographer, who sits on the floor with a typewriter between his legs. The natives are not so far modernized, however, that the men will bestir themselves to do any work. They do not believe in work. They leave work to the women. The hardest task the men perform is to carry around the babies. They do this so the women will have nothing to interfere with their work.

A cripple with both legs cut off below the knee hobbles pathetically across City Hall park every day or two. A little leather satchel is slung across his shoulder and the casual passerby instinctively feels in his pocket for a nickel or a dime, expecting the crippled one momentarily to open up the satchel and offer gum or whistlings or pencils for sale.

But he never pauses or opens the bag. An inquisitive pedestrian followed him the other day to find out where he made his "pitch" or kept his beggarly rendezvous. He trailed the crippled one down Nassau street and up the stairway of a building occupied by a stamp and die factory. There the crippled one took off his leather satchel and handed it through the cashier's window.

He wasn't a beggar at all. He carries the payroll and the firm's daily deposits, amounting to hundreds of dollars, back and forth to the bank.—New York Sun.

3,000 PERSONS TO LIVE IN WORLD'S DE LUXE APARTMENT GROUP

NORTH SHAKER UNIT, 1350 FT. LONG

A TWO-STORY LIVING ROOM Y ONE OF 50 ENTRANCES AT MORELAND COURTS

Cleveland is holding the eyes of the world on what is declared to be the greatest apartment house development ever attempted. Construction is in progress on a project which calls for an expenditure of thirty million dollars. Two of six monster units have been started in Shaker Heights, an exclusive suburb nineteen minutes from Cleveland's Public Square. The development lies on the city's only rapid transit line, which will be even more enhanced with the completion of the new $60,000,000 union depot in the Square. When this is finished the rapid transit cars will move mostly underground.

This development, of the Moreland Courts Company, will be a complete city in itself. It is America's first "Garden City" de luxe. The apartments will house a community of 5,000 persons and will include theaters, stores of all varieties and restaurants. All of the architecture is of the Georgian and Elizabethan type. While a high standard is maintained throughout, there will be a long range in size and rental of the homes, prices ranging all the way from $50 a month for small suites to $600 for a dozen rooms with three or four baths.

Colonel Alfred W. Harris, of Cleveland, the architect, spent two years completing the plans and utilized ideas gleaned from travels over Europe and America.

SPLENDID WINTER HOME FOR HOGS

Well-Built House Earns Profits for Swine Raisers.

SAVES LIVES OF LITTLE PIGS

Sanitary Ventilation and Protection From Cold, Essentials in Successful Raising of Pigs, Are Well Provided For.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD
Mr. William A. Radford, an answer to the question of how to raise pigs, is given in this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 127 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Breeding sows maintained by successful swine raisers will be having their fall litters of pigs within a short time. Seven or eight months from the time they are farrowed these pigs will weigh around 200 pounds and will get to market at the time when prices are at the top for the year and their size will make them "market toppers." The meantime the sows will be bred again and will farrow in the late winter or early spring, thus keeping up their production to the top notch and earning big profits for their owners.

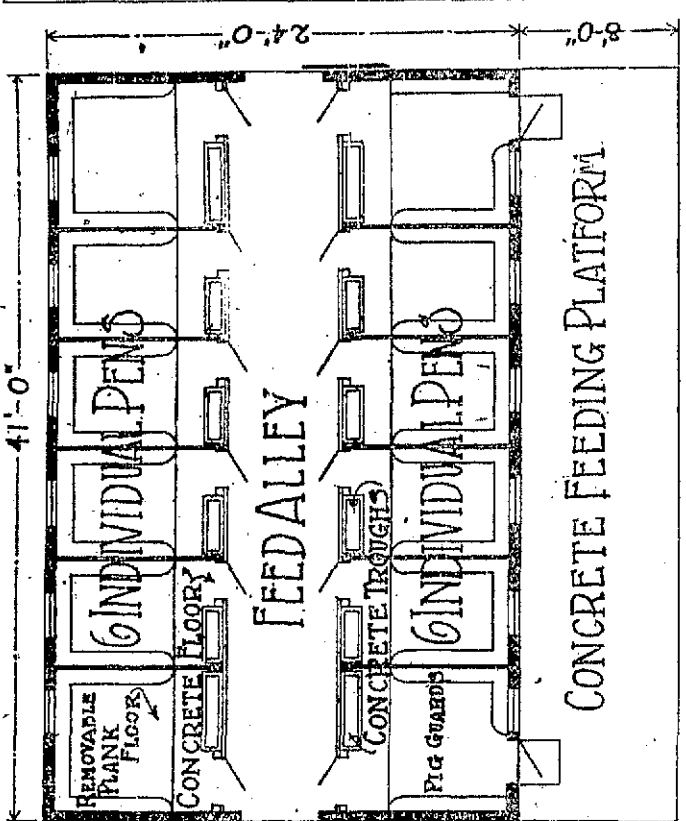

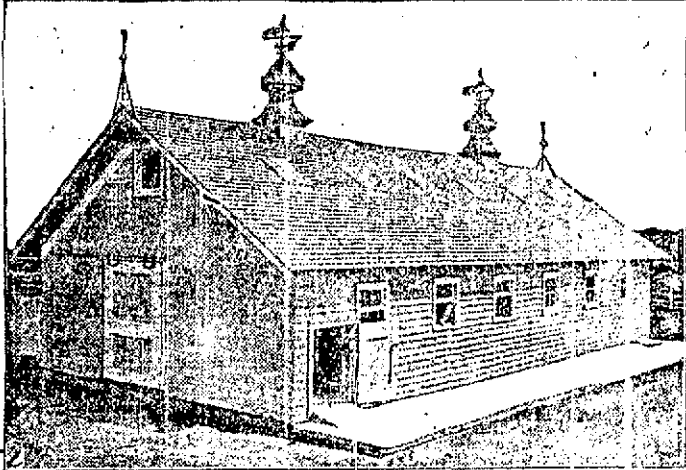

There is a paragraph in the secret of success with hogs—two litters of pigs a year—that coupled with having only purebred animals and housing and feeding them so that they will make the greater growth for the least amount of feed and care.

In the corn belt states, where hog raising has been brought up to its present state of efficiency, the winters are long and the weather is cold. In some of the states extremely so. Before it was learned that hogs need more than a loosely constructed shack, having a dirty and filthy floor, two litters of pigs were unknown. Sows were bred so that they would farrow in the late spring and early summer, because little pigs cannot stand cold, especially if the cold is accompanied by dampness. One chill and that was the end of the pigs. When the sows farrowed late in the spring, a second litter was out of the question, as the pigs came along so late in the fall that they had no chance to become strong enough to withstand the winter. Thus production was only half what nature intended it should be, with a resultant halving of income.

Study of the needs of the sows and their pigs in the first few weeks of their lives has developed a standard design for hog houses. These houses may be built of any of the standard building materials, but all of them have in common several features that sows and pigs need. Weather-tight buildings to keep out the cold and dampness; good floors that are raised from the ground so that the pigs will not become chilled by contact with the earth; plenty of sunlight to prevent disease and help warm the buildings in winter; a supply of fresh air brought in by ventilation, which also carries away the foul air.

Hog houses are constructed from two general designs. One is known as the saw-tooth roof, which has a half-moon-shaped roof line, with windows set in the side of the wall. These windows, supplemented by windows in the side wall of the building proper, permit sunlight to strike the pens on both sides of the interior. The other type of hog house is known as the cable house, a good example of which is shown in the accompanying illustration.

This house is of standard frame construction, a good grade of lumber being used to make it weather-tight. The building is set on a concrete foundation.

tion, and has a concrete floor. The building is 41 feet long and 24 feet wide, which provides room for twenty pens, six on each side. Through the center of the building runs a feeding alley, wide enough to run a feed truck, thus distributing the feed to the troughs with the least amount of labor.

The long side of the building shows in the picture faced the south. With this arrangement the windows in the side wall provide sunlight for the pens on the rear side and the roof windows admitting the sunlight to the pens on the far side of the building. The other side wall, which faces the north is solid, thus keeping out the wind from that direction.

The pens may be of steel, which, because of paint and the shape of the round bars, make them more sanitary, or they may be of planks. The former are set into the concrete foundation, while the latter are attached to the studding of the walls. Many owners prefer the pens so constructed that they may be removed in summer, thus providing a good shelter for the animals during the hot weather—a covered feeding floor.

Each pen is floored with planks raised slightly from the concrete. These floors cover half the pens, which gives the sows a raised section on which the bedding is placed. With plenty of bedding and a space between the planks and concrete, the small pigs will be warm and free from danger from chills.

Such a building as this is set on foundation, and has a concrete floor. The building is 41 feet long and 24 feet wide, which provides room for twenty pens, six on each side. Through the center of the building runs a feeding alley, wide enough to run a feed truck, thus distributing the feed to the troughs with the least amount of labor.

Two Grid Games Will Be Played This Week-end; Latrobe and Charleroi

High School Plays on Friday; Tornadoes Scheduled Saturday

"BOOSTER DAY" CLASH

Two classy grid games in two days will be the program offered to football fans of Connellsville and vicinity this week-end. On Friday afternoon the High School will play Latrobe High at Fayette field and on Saturday afternoon the Tornadoes play the biggest game on the season's schedule with the Charleroi team which held Brownsville to a 14-6 score.

The High School game has been scheduled for Friday because of the Pitt-W. & J. game at Forbes field, Pittsburgh, on Saturday. This clash is attended each season by a number of Coker scholars and in order to give the players a Saturday off the Latrobe game was moved forward one day.

The Friday game between the High School and Latrobe is expected to be a close one. The season is drawing to a close and the local independents arranged to play the only team which has threatened Brownsville this fall—Charleroi. Coach Jones has determined to make it "booster day" and a record crowd is expected to fill the park. The Tornadoes will have several surprises in their lineup for the patrons and the air of mystery surrounding these preparations is adding increased interest to the coming clash.

LOCAL INDEPENDENT GRID TEAM TO MEET CHARLEROI SATURDAY

The Connellsville Tornadoes will play the biggest game of the season on Saturday unless a contest should later be arranged with Brownsville, which game will undoubtedly be the highlight of the schedule. Charleroi, the only team which has threatened Brownsville this season, will be at Fayette field Saturday. The Cokers are making big preparations for the contest and have a number of surprises in store for the followers of the team. The day will be "booster" day in Connellsville.

Coach Jones said he was making Saturday booster day because he knew Charleroi would be a good attraction. "I know that team has the goods," he said, "and it will be the best game of the year."

The Tornadoes need a big day to put the team on its feet and with the Charleroi outfit as a sure-fire first-class team, the Tornadoes have no hesitancy in asking that it be the date for fans to show their real loyalty and support.

GIBSON HIGH NEEDS FLOOR IN ORDER TO PLAY BASKETBALL

Sixteen boys and sixteen girls, students of the Gibson High School, have gotten together and discussed ways and means of putting a basketball team on the floor. One serious drawback is that there is no place to practice or play games except the Capstan floor, and that is in an out of the way place, and cannot be secured at all times. If a floor can be secured there is no doubt that Gibson will have a classy team, as there is plenty of good material to form both girl and boy squads.

Greensburg and Johnstown High Schools have again severed athletic relations. The break came following charges made against Greensburg by Coach Harry J. Green of the Johnstown team. In presenting his charges Green alleged that "the general athletic attitude of Greensburg High players and followers was not conducive to the continuing of athletic relations." He emphasized this by stating that "Greensburg's eligibility rules did not conform to those of other scholastic institutions and that for the most effect on high school students, better, easier, and fairer, it would be better to come, relationship."

The Fayette A. A. of Connellsville defeated the Dunbar Tigers 20-0, in a game at Dunbar Monday. "Iron" Blair was the outstanding star for the victors. Abe Bixler was referee.

Johnny King of Fayette City, who fought here last winter, was badly beaten by Jimmy Jones at McKeesport Monday night. King's nose was broken and Jones could have sent him to the mat any time after the fifth, according to reports of the scrap.

Culte a number of Coker fans will witness the Pitt-W. & J. game Saturday, but others who had counted on attending it are now between two fires, a desire to go to Pittsburgh and also to see the Tornadoes play Charleroi here.

High School has three games on its schedule, Latrobe, Dunbar Township and Crafton. For a time all were looked on as sure victories but now the Cokers can count only one—the Dunbar Township game, Latrobe and

Crafton have been showing unexpected strength and may upset the local "dope."

After Thanksgiving basketball will be the chief attraction. High School is already preparing for it and there is also talk of getting the City League, which was successful last season, started again.

The South Connellsville Independents have not received any answers from football teams for games and the team is getting stale for want of action. Games are wanted with the Eastern Bridge of Uniontown, East Greensburg, Mount Pleasant, Superior, Tornado Juniors, or South Side Tornadoes are desired. Write Atlas Hotel, South Connellsville.

INTEREST IN PITT-W. & J. GAME SATURDAY IS AT FEVER HEAT

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 15.—The stage is now set for the two final football games in Pittsburgh on the University of Pittsburgh schedule, namely W. & J. and Penn State. W. & J. plays here Saturday for the first of these two great struggles, and the game will be one of the most bitterly fought in gridiron history. The Presidents have been unbeaten to date and have a one-point decision over Lafayette, whereas Pitt failed before that team by a touchdown defeat early in the season. W. & J. is a far more experienced team than Pitt and is in better shape for the game. Coach Warner being compelled to put in an eleven against W. & J. which is not as strong as he had hoped for in the early part of the season. Injuries to captain Holleran and Colonna and the sickness of Nick Shuler give Warner some problems to worry over. Captain Holleran was the first string quarterback and had his arm broken in the Lafayette game. Shuler was being groomed for his place and looked like almost the equal to the great "Tommy" when he became ill just before the Penn game and is probably out for the entire season. In the Penn game Colonna had his shoulder dislocated when sent in for Hewitt, thereby robbing Warner of a man who is about the equal of the great "Tiny."

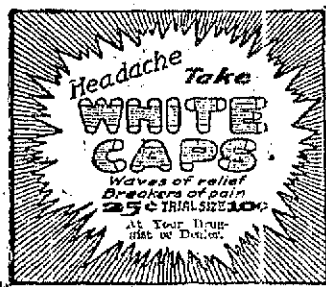

Winterburn, the quarterbacked against Penn, will be in the same position against W. & J. He has the proper weight for that position, as Warner wants a heavy man to lead the interference. Winterburn is playing his last year on the varsity, and if he shows up as well against W. & J. as he did against Penn, everyone at Pitt will be satisfied. Johnson will be understudy to Hewitt at fullback, the big Beloitite Academy product having showed up well at that position on the 1921 freshman team, and with a week's special coaching will be ready to be put in the fray at any time against W. & J.

W. & J. and Pitt have been meeting for more than two decades. In recent years Pitt has had a big edge, having won over the Red and Black for no less than six years until 1921 when the Presidents put over a forward pass which won the game. Since that time football fans have talked of the 1922 Pitt-W. & J. game, and now that it is right before them, interest is at a fever heat. Washington, the home of W. & J. will send up practically the entire population to see the game.

For the accommodation of out of town fans, the Pitt management announce that it is possible to secure two general admission tickets per person for the game, mail orders being accepted if accompanied by certified check, cash or money order and self-addressed envelope. The price of general admission is $2, these tickets admitting to the left field concrete stands at Forbes field also the center field bleachers. The capacity of these stands is about 5,000 and as only 5,000 tickets will be sold, there will be very little standing room reservations disposed of.

Convenient Hours. The Safe Deposit Department of the Citizens National Bank is open from 9 A. M. to 3 P. M. every day, and on Saturday evening from 7 to 9 P. M. #### High School Plays Latrobe Outfit on Friday Afternoon

Connellsville football fans will get two grid clashes in a row this week. The Connellsville High School team will play Latrobe Friday afternoon. The game holds promise of being on a par with the Scotland clash on November 4, which game was witnessed by 3,000 persons.

The Latrobe team has been playing a better brand of football than was ever expected of it this season and the contest will require every Coker to be on his toes Saturday. The team will need to report for practice every night this week as the days for the week-outs have been reduced one by the fact that the game will be on Friday afternoon.

Coach Wine has mapped out a hard program for his gridlers this week. The boys were lax all through last week and the defeat at the hands of Monaca showed beyond all doubt that practice could not be misused and training rules broken without dire results.

Latrobe may prove a far stronger antagonist than old Monaca. Norwin defeated Latrobe 7-0 last Saturday after it seemed that the game would end in a scoreless tie, and Norwin has a strong eleven.

"It's interesting, very interesting," said Mr. Gale. "At another time I want to tell you all about the West. It's new to me. I'm surprised, amazed, sir, I may say. But, Mr. Belding, what I want to know is about my son. I'm broken in health. I've worried myself ill over him. I don't mind telling you, sir, that I've come to see I didn't know Richard. I was wrong to upbraid him. For a year we've known nothing of his longings, and now for almost six months we've not heard from him at all. Frankly, Mr. Belding, I weakened first, and I've come to hunt him up. My ear is that I didn't start soon enough."

Mr. Gale paused, and the white hand he raised expressively shook a little. Belding was not so thick-skulled where men were concerned. He saw the matter lay between Dick Gale and his father. "Well, Mr. Gale, sure most young bucks from the East go to the head out here," he said, bluntly. "They blow their money, then go to 'punching crows, take to whiskey."

Mr. Gale lifted his head and eyes. "Then it's bumbling around, regular tramps, and to the bad generally," Belding spread wide his big arms, and when one of them dropped round Neil, who sat beside him, she squeezed his hand tight. "Sure, it's the regular thing," he concluded cheerfully. "He rather felt a little piece at Mr. Gale's distress, and Mrs. Gale's crushed I-told-you-so voice in no wise bothered him; but the look in the big, dark eyes of Dick's sister was too much for Belding."

He choked off his characteristic oath when excited and blurted out: "Saw, but Dick Gale never went to the bad!" Belding had scarcely started Dick Gale's story when he perceived that never in his life had he such an absorbed and breathless audience. Presently they were awed, and at the conclusion of that story they sat white-faced, still, amazed, beyond speech. Belding kept back nothing but the present doubt of Dick's safety.

Mr. Gale rose instantly from his chair. His frailty was now painfully manifest. "Mr. Belding, do you mean my son—Richard Gale—has done all that you told us?" he asked, incredulously. "I sure do," replied Belding, with hearty good will.

"Martha, do you hear?" Mr. Gale turned to question his wife. She could not answer. Her face had not yet regained its natural color. "He faced that bandit and his gang alone—he fought them?" demanded Mr. Gale, his voice stronger. Belding nodded with a grin. "He's a ranger now—riding, fighting, sleeping on the sand, preparing his own food? Mr. Belding, you say Richard works for you. May I ask, at what salary?"

"He gets forty dollars, board and outfit," replied Belding, proudly. "Forty dollars?" echoed the father. "By the day, or week?" "By the month, of course," said Belding, somewhat taken back. "Forty dollars a month for a young man who spent five hundred in the same time when he was at college, and who ran it into thousands when he got out?"

Mr. Gale laughed for the first time, and it was the laugh of a man who wanted to believe what he heard yet barely dared to do it. "What does he do with so much money—money earned by peril, toil, sweat and blood? Forty dollars a month?"

"He saves it," replied Belding. "Honestly this was too much for Dick Gale's father, and he gazed at his wife in sheer speechless astonishment. Dick's sister clasped her hands like a little child."

Belding saw that the moment was propitious. "Sure he gives it. Dick's engaged to marry Nell here. My stepdaughter, Nell Burton."

"Oh, Dad?" faltered Nell; and she rose, white as her dress. How strange it was to see Dick's mother and sister rise, also, and turn to him with dark, proud, searching eyes. Belding vaguely realized some blunder he had made. Nell's white, appealing face gave him a pang. What had he done? Surely this father of Dick's ought to know his relationship to Nell. There was a silence that positively made Belding nervous.

Then Elsie Gale stepped close to Nell. "Miss Burton, are you really Richard's betrothed?" Nell's tremulous lips framed an affirmative, but never uttered it. She held out her hand, showing the ring Dick had given her. Miss Gale's recognition was instant, and her response was warm, sweet, gracious.

"I think I am going to be very, very glad," she said, and kissed Nell. "Miss Burton, we are learning wonderful things about Richard," added Mr. Gale, in an earnest, though shaken voice. "If you have had to do with making a man of him—and now I begin to see, to believe so—May God bless you! My dear girl, I have not really looked at you, Richard's fiancée! Mother, we have not found him yet, but I think we've found his secret. We believed him a lost son. But here is his sweetheart!"

It was only then that the pride and hauteur of Mrs. Gale's face broke into an expression of mingled pain and fear. She opened her arms. Nell, uttering a strange little stifled cry, drew into them.

CHAPTER XV

Sound in the Desert.

Far away from Fortora River Dick Gale sat stunned, gazing down into the purple depths where Rojas had plunged to his death. The Yaqui stood motionless upon the steep red wall of lava from which he had cut the bandit's hold. Mercedes lay quietly where she had fallen. From across the depths there came to Gale's ear the Indian's strange, wild cry. Action on the part of the Yaqui loosened the spell which held Gale as motionless as his surroundings. The Indian was edging back toward the ledge. He did not move with his former lithe and sure freedom. He crawled, slipped, dragged himself, rested often, and went on again. He had been wounded. When at last he reached the ledge where Mercedes lay, Gale jumped to his feet, strong and thrilling, spurred to meet the responsibility that now rested upon him. Swiftly he turned to where Thorne sat. The cavalryman was just returning to consciousness. The look in Thorne's eyes was hard to bear.

"Thorne! Thorne! It's all right, it's all right!" cried Gale, in piercing tones. "Mercedes is safe! Yaqui loved her! Rojas is done for! Yaqui lumped down the wall and drove the bandit off the ledge. Out him loose from the wall, foot by foot, hand by hand! We've won the fight, Thorne. For Thorne these were marvelous strength-giving words. The dark horror left his eyes, and they began to dilate, to shine. He stood up, dizzily but unaided, and he gazed across the crater. Yaqui had reached the side of Mercedes, was bending over her. She stirred. Yaqui lifted her to her feet. She appeared weak, unable to stand alone. But she faced across the crater and waved her hand. She was unaided. The Yaqui waved, too, and Gale saw in the action an urgent signal.

Hastily taking up canteen and rifle, Gale put a supporting arm around Thorne.

"Come, old man. Can you walk? Sure you can walk! Lean on me, and we'll soon get out of this. Don't look across. Look where you step. We've not much time before dark. Oh, Thorne, I'm afraid Jim has cashed in! The last I saw of Laddy he was badly hurt."

Gale was keyed up to a high pitch of excitement and alertness. He seemed to be able to do many things. But once off the ragged notched lava into the trail he had not such difficulty with Thorne, and could keep his keen gaze shifting everywhere for sight of enemies.

"Listen, Thorne! What's that?" asked Gale, halting as they came to a place where the trail led down through rough breaks in the lava. The silence was broken by a strange sound, almost unbearable considering the time and place. A voice was droning: "Turn the lady, turn! Turn the lady, turn! Alamon left. All swing; turn the lady, turn!"

"Hello, Jim," called Gale, dragging Thorne round the corner of lava. "Where are you? Oh, you son of a gun! I thought you were dead. Oh, I'm glad to see you! Jim, are you hurt?"

Jim Lash stood in the trail—leaning over the butt of his rifle, which evidently he was utilizing as a crutch. He was pale but smiling. His hands were bloody. A scarf had been wound tightly round his left leg just above the knee. The leg hung limp, and the foot dragged.

"I reckon I ain't injured much," replied Jim. "But my leg hurts like hell, if you want to know."

"Laddy! Oh, where's Laddy?" "He's just across the creek there. I was trying to get to him. We had it hot, a heavy down here. Laddy was pretty hot shot up before he tried to head Rojas off the trail."

Dick, did you see the Yaqui go after Rojas?" "Did I?" exclaimed Gale, grimly. "The Indian was all that saved me from ruinin' loco. I reckon our chances are against Ardin Laddy alive. I tell you, boys, Rojas was a—b—b—b. An' Mercedes was game. I saw her shoot him. But maybe bullets couldn't stop him then. If I didn't sweat blood when Mercedes was fightin' him on the cliff! Then the finish! Only a Yaqui could have done that. . . . Thorne, how about you? Dick, is he bad hurt?"

"No, he's not. A hard knock on the skull and a scarp wound," replied Dick. "Holler Jim let me help you over this place."

Step by step Gale got the two injured men down the uneven declivity and then across the narrow lava bridge over the fissure. Here he bade them rest while he went along the trail on that side to search for Laddy. Gale found the ranger stretched out, face downward, a reddened head clutching a gun. Gale thought he was dead. Upon examination, however, it was found that Laddy still lived, though he had many wounds. Gale lifted him and carried him back to the others.

"It's alive, but that's all," said Dick, as he laid the ranger down. "Do what you can. Stop the blood. Laddy's tough as catgut, you know. I'll hurry back for Mercedes and Yaqui."

Gale, like a fleet, sure-footed mountaineer, ran along the trail. He came upon Mercedes and the Yaqui. She was rising into Dick's arms, and then her strength, if not her courage, broke, and she grew lax.

"Mercedes, you're safe! Thorne's safe. It's all right now."

"Rojas!" she whispered. "Gone! To the bottom of the crater! A Yaqui's vengeance, Mercedes."

He heard the girl whisper the name of the Virgin. Then he gathered her up in his arms.

"Come, Yaqui!"

The Indian grunted. He had one hand pressed close over a bloody place in his shoulder. Gale looked keenly at him. Yaqui was heavily, but not badly, hurt. Gale saw that he was a good fighter, and that he was a brave man. The Indian followed him.

Gale carried Mercedes up to the rim and along to the others. Jim Lash worked awkwardly over Laddy. Thorne was trying to assist. Laddy, himself, was conscious, but he was a pallid, apparently a death-stricken man. The greeting between Mercedes and Thorne was calmly, and so, it seemed to Gale. But he was now calm himself. Laddy called at him, and evidently would have spoken had he the power. Yaqui then joined the group, and his piercing eyes roved from one to the other, lingering long, at last over Laddy.

"Dick, the finger's hard," said Jim, faintly. "In a minute it'll be up to you an' Mercedes. I've about shot me. . . . Reckon you'll do—best to brag—up blankets—water—salt—broiled. Laddy's got one chance—in a hundred. Fix him up—first. Use hot salt water. If my leg's broke—set it best you can. That hole in Yaqui—only'll bother him a day. Thorne's bad hurt. . . . Now rustic—Dick, old-boy."

Lash's voice died away in a husky whisper, and he quivered, like a leaf, as he looked at the crippled leg. Gale examined it, and saw that the bones had not been broken, and then rose ready to go down the trail.

"Mercedes, hold Thorne's head up, in your lap—so. Now I'll go. On the mountain Yaqui appeared to have completed the binding of his wounded shoulder, and he started to follow Gale. The great desert was so vast and swift and dry. Gale hastily put together the things he needed, and packing them all in a tarpaulin, he turned to retrace his steps up the trail.

Darkness was setting in. The trail was narrow, exceedingly steep, and in some places fringed on precipices. Gale's burden was not very heavy, but his bulk made it awkward, and it was always overbalancing him or knocking against the wall side of the trail. At last they reached a level, and were soon on the spot with Mercedes and the injured man.

Gale then set to work. Yaqui's part was to keep the fire blazing and the water hot. Mercedes to help Gale in what way she could. Gale found Laddy had many wounds, yet not one of them was directly in a vital place. Evidently, the ranger had almost bled to death. He remained unconscious through Gale's operations.

Jim Lash came out of his stupor. A mushrooming bullet had torn a great hole in his leg. Gale, upon examination, could not be sure the bones had been missed, but there was no bad break. The application of hot salt water made Jim groan. When he had been bandaged and laid beside Laddy, Gale went on to the cavalryman. A furrow had been plowed through his scalp down to the bone. When it had been dressed, Mercedes collapsed. Gale laid her with the three in a row and covered them with blankets and the tarpaulin.

Then Yaqui submitted to examination. A bullet had gone through the Indian's shoulder. To Gale it appeared serious. Yaqui said it was a flea bite. But he allowed Gale to bandage it, and obeyed when he was told to lie quiet in his blanket beside the fire.

Gale stood guard. The hour had come for him to face his great problem. It was natural that he hung back a little at first; natural that when he went forward to look at the patient sleepers he did so with a grim and stern force urging him. Yaqui stirred, rose, yawned, got up; and, though he did not smile at Gale, a light glinted swiftly across his dark face. His shoulder drooped and appeared stiff, otherwise he was himself. Mercedes lay in deep slumber. Thorne had a high fever, and was beginning to show signs of weakness. Laddy had been just healed. Jim Lash slept as if he was not much the worse for his wound.

Gale awoke Mercedes. Swiftly she sat up. "Mercedes—come. Are you all right? Laddy's alive. Thorne's not—not so bad. But we've got a job on our hands. You must help me."

She bent over Thorne and laid her hands on his hot face. Then she rose—a woman such as he had imagined she might be in a hour of trial.

Gale took up Laddy as carefully and gently as possible.

STORIES OF GREAT INDIANS

By Elmo Scott Watson

"CROW DOG SAYS HE COME"—WAS READY TO DIE

WHEN Spotted Tail, backed by the military whom he had aided, usurped the head chieftainship of the Brule Sioux, his high-handed act was bitterly resented. Chief Crow Dog (Kings Sunk) took a vow to kill the head chief if ever he disgraced the name of the Sisseton (Brule).

Years passed. Spotted Tail, drunk with power, raised his high office for personal ends. His people murmured but were powerless. Then he coveted the wife of Medicine Bear and, coveting, took her. Crow Dog, a relative of Medicine Bear, remembered his vow. On August 5, 1881, he met Spotted Tail and shot him dead, after which he gave himself up.

He was tried at Deadwood, S. D., convicted of murder and sentenced to be hanged. Crow Dog asked permission to say farewell to his family, promising to return on the day set for the execution.

When Crow Dog did not show up the next day, Indian police were dispatched to get him. He was not at home and his wife told them that the chief had wished to return to prison alone and would surely keep his promise. The next day the chief walked into the jail at Rapid City. "Crow Dog says he come," was his laconic reply to the surprised greeting of his jailer.

Meanwhile efforts were being made to cause his life by a stay of execution. His case was carried to the Supreme court of the United States which ruled that the federal courts had no jurisdiction over crime committed by one Indian against another on a reservation. So Crow Dog walked out of prison a free man.

Ten years later Crow Dog was in the limelight again, as one of the Brule leaders who fled from the Rosebud agency during the Ghost Dance craze to join the Ojibwas in the Bad Lands. The Brule chief was soon convinced that his cause was hopeless and he consented to surrender.

But the irreconcilables were still eager for war. They caught up their rifles and threatened to shoot those who wavered. Seeing this Crow Dog drew his blanket over his head. "I do not wish to know who would be guilty of slaying a brother Dakota," he said. His words so impressed the warriors that civil war was averted and the hostilities suddenly fled into the agency to surrender.

It was Crow Dog's last war trail, from that day he lived in peace on the Rosebud reservation until his death August 22, 1912.

Past Season Demonstrates That Golfers Who Captured Titular Events Won on Merit.

Though golf is fraught with uncertainty, the past season in a way has demonstrated that a number of those who did win titular events were no accidental champions. Cases in point are Gene Sarazen, who captured the national open and the Professional Golfers' association title; Jesse Sweetser, successful in the national and metropolitan amateur meetings, and lastly, Marty O'Loughlin, leading the list in the New Jersey and metropolitan opens. For any one to keep on winning nowadays against the keen competition means good golf all the time. A few slips and he's gone.

WHEN KIDNEYS HURT TAKE GLASS OF SALTS

Eat Less Meat If You Feel Backache or Have Bladder Trouble.

Too much meat may form uric acid, which settles and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Big meat eaters can flush the kidneys occasionally to relieve them like they relieve the bowels purging all the acids, waste and poison, else they may feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, the stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad they have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging one to get up two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids and flush out the body's uricous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help prevent various kidney and bladder disorders. ## Daily Fashion Hints

One may shade one's face with a wide brim of soft gray squirrel that faces the narrow velours hat to the left. Or one may fancy the center hat of panne velvet with its single stitch trimming. It is worn with a scarf of stitch to match. The feather hat is most stunning with blue-white, iridescent, black-green and a clever touch of orange. The neckpiece to match is most effective.

The "Mother of Medicine" Isis, the Queen and afterwards the Goddess, was called the "Mother of Medicine." In ancient Egypt, centuries before Christ, women were skilled in medicine. They knew the great value of medicinal plants.

Hippocrates, the "Father of Medicine," many centuries later, knew less of the merit of vegetable drugs than did the women of ancient times.

Lidia E. Pinkham, nearly fifty years ago, gave to women her Vegetable Compound, now known everywhere as Lidia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This is a woman's medicine for woman's ailments. Advertisement.
